Focus:
Communication and Language

Please return homework by Wednesday 13th October

Speaking and listening are vital skills that children need to aid their skills in communication and language.

In the past few weeks we have been identifying sounds in the environment and have been learning to describe them. Attached is a simple listening game that you can play with your child. Included are different versions of the game for you to try.

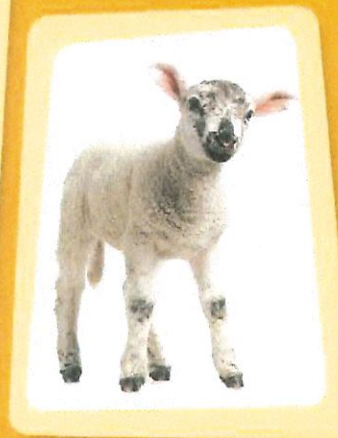

Many thanks,

Mrs Farrington

Which animal am I?

How to play

Choose an animal from the pictures and make its sound. ("Woof" or "Baa" etc.) Ask your child to guess which animal the sound belongs to by pointing to the right picture.

Help your child get ready for pre-school by making sure they're able to pay attention and listen. Telling the difference between sounds will enable your child to focus better on their teacher's voice. This game may seem simple but it's vital for encouraging good communication skills.

TOO EASY? Make two or three sounds in a row ("Woof", "Quack" and "Meow"). You could even ask your child to find the pictures in the right order.

MAKE YOUR OWN VERSION: Cut out pictures of things that make distinctive noises e.g. car, telephone, doorbell or other animals.
