Expressive Arts &
Design

Please return homework by Wednesday 19th January

This week the children have listened to the story 'Whatever Next!' by Jill Murphy. There are lots of versions of this story on You Tube, if you would like to share this story with your child.

The children have had lots of fun learning about travelling in space rockets, re-enacting the story with props and have listened to some space music whilst designing their own planet.

For our home learning this week I would like your child to use their imagination and design a new planet that Baby Bear could visit next! After talking about this new planet, your child could draw a picture of it, create it using construction toys or even produce a junk model of it! They may even come up with their own idea of how to create their new planet!

Have fun being creative!

Many thanks,
